Board of trustees

Mavlonova Fotima Iqboljon qizi

Second-year undergraduate student at Alisher Navo'i Tashkent State University of Uzbek Language and Literature, serving as a photographer

Tashkent State University of Uzbek Language and Literature

Mavlonova Fotima is a second-year undergraduate student at Alisher Navo'i Tashkent State University of Uzbek Language and Literature.

Since her first year of study, she has been actively involved in the university's media activities, working as a photographer for the university's undergraduate media team. During this time, she has gained valuable experience in event photography, visual storytelling, and documenting various academic, cultural, and social activities. Through her photographs, she seeks to capture meaningful moments, convey emotions, and reflect the dynamic atmosphere of university life.

Alongside her media activities, she is also engaged in literary and journalistic work. She has written and published articles on various topics, demonstrating her interest in writing, research, and sharing ideas with a wider audience. Her passion for literature and language inspires her to explore different forms of creative expression and develop her skills in academic and journalistic writing.

She has a profound interest in art, literature, and music, which play an important role in shaping her creative outlook and intellectual development. She is particularly interested in the relationship between different forms of art, their cultural significance, and their ability to express human emotions, ideas, and values. She enjoys exploring literary works, discovering artistic perspectives, and engaging with music as a source of inspiration.

In addition to her academic and creative pursuits, she actively participates in the university's intellectual and cultural activities.

She takes part in the Zakovat Intellectual Game, where she demonstrates her curiosity, analytical thinking, and enthusiasm for intellectual challenges. She is also a member of the University Student Theatre Studio, through which she explores theatrical arts, develops her artistic abilities, and gains experience in creative collaboration and stage performance.

She takes part in the Zakovat Intellectual Game, where she demonstrates her curiosity, analytical thinking, and enthusiasm for intellectual challenges. She is also a member of the University Student Theatre Studio, through which she explores theatrical arts, develops her artistic abilities, and gains experience in creative collaboration and stage performance.

Her main interests include photography, journalism, literature, fine arts, music, theatre, intellectual games, and media communication.

She believes that creativity, knowledge, and continuous self-development are essential for personal and professional growth.

Through her academic achievements, published articles, media contributions, and active participation in extracurricular activities, she strives to broaden her intellectual horizons, strengthen her creative potential, and make a meaningful contribution to the university's academic and cultural environment.